Free Thinkers at CNU Weekly Discussion- Can Morality Exist Without a God

Can you have morality without the existence of God? What is the definition of human morality? What is the purpose of morality? Come to explore these and other questions with Free Thinkers at CNU! We will be meeting on Monday February 22th in McMurran 101 from 6:30pm-8:00pm. (Note: This discussion was postponed from February 15th due to weather.)

Freethought is the application of critical thinking to all areas of human experience, unconstrained by tradition or authority. Freethinkers hold the belief that nothing is too sacred to be questioned, and seek to expand upon existential, theological, philosophical, and rational ideas and concepts. The Freethinkers of CNU seek to create an environment for discussion, expression, debate and education.

Contact rachel.wagner.15@cnu.edu with any questions!

Colleges Against Cancer Donut Fundraiser

Colleges Against Cancer is selling donuts next week from 11:00am to 2:00pm in the DSU. $1 for 1 donut and $8 for a dozen. All proceeds go to Relay for Life!

Provost's Award for Excellence in Student Writing

This award is an annual contest sponsored by the Provost's Office and the Writing Program Council. The contest is open to all CNU undergraduates with winners receiving a total of $500.

This award is given to a student whose devotion to undergraduate writing embodies the goals and ideals of the liberal arts tradition through the treatment of writing as a developmental process and the use of written feedback and evaluation of writing.

Students wishing to be considered for this award should include the following items :

1. 500-word personal statement that addresses the criteria listed below.
2. One or two evaluated papers.
3. Two faculty recommendation forms that address the criteria listed below. (Recommendations do not necessarily need to be from the faculty assigning the submitted student papers.)

Criteria for the award:

- Treats writing as an ongoing process of knowledge articulation where improvement is gained through informal and formal preparatory activities, multiple drafts, iterations, and revisions.
- Seeks continual and diverse opportunities for feedback from written comments, conferencing with instructor, peer review sessions, and appointments with tutors in the Writing Center.
- Continues developing papers and projects past the scope of a class for submission to publication, to enter graduate school, and pursue a career.

Applications should be submitted to the University Writing Program website at <http://cnu.edu/provost/writingprogram/#tab-2>

Deadline for application: March 25,2016
