

New Course

MLAN 395: Modern Arabic Literature

Professor Diana Obeid

This course is a survey of the most important moments in the development of Modern Arabic Literature from the end of the 19th century to the present. We will map the developments, achievements, and innovations by Arab writers against a double background of rising nationalism, decolonization, and wars on one hand and the

MCM 257: MWF 12:00 – 12:50

"Open to all juniors and seniors; and to sophomores with permission of the department"; no previous knowledge of Arabic is required.

For more information, please contact diana.obeid@cpux.edu