Changes to WiFi-CNU in Spring 2016

Beginning January of 2016 student computers accessing WiFi-CNU will be required to run the OnGuard security client available at http://10.2.1.44/guest/OnGuard_HealthCheck.php?_browser=1. In preparation for spring semester you can download and run this client now. You must be on the campus network to do so.

Beginning March 1st of 2016 student computers accessing WiFi-CNU will be required to have Antivirus software installed and running. The OnGuard security client (http://10.2.1.44/guest/OnGuard_HealthCheck.php?_browser=1) allows us to ensure compliance with that standard. During initial deployment, this security scan will inform you whether or not your operating system is up to date and running anti-virus software. Computers without anti-virus software will get a status message of 'unhealthy'. From January through March 1st 2016, computers will only be put into remediation if they do not have the OnGuard security client installed. Computers prevented from otherwise using the network will be able to access and perform the needed download.

This initial period, during which only the OnGuard client is required, will allow you to update your computer and acquire anti-virus software if needed. After March 1st our security efforts will be tightened and computers without an anti-virus program will be remediated from network access. Users will have a grace period to perform updates and install an anti-virus when their computer is out of compliance.

OnGuard security client: http://10.2.1.44/guest/OnGuard_HealthCheck.php?_browser=1

For more information, visit our Security Compliance web page (<http://cnu.edu/its/infrastructure/security%20compliance.asp>).

Thanks for your efforts in keeping our network safe for everyone.
