4th Annual CAS Symposium on Homeland Security and Defense

The Center for American Studies is hosting its 4th annual Symposium on Homeland Security and Defense this May 18-19th. This year's theme is "Achieving Resiliency in America's Critical Infrastructure."

Keynote speakers include:

- Bob Stephan, Executive Director, Gryphon Scientific, and former Assistant Secretary for Infrastructure Protection, Department of Homeland Security
- Brian Moran, Secretary of Public Safety and Homeland Security, and Chief Resilience Officer, Commonwealth of Virginia
- Vice Admiral William "Dean" Lee, Commander, Atlantic Area, and Commander, Defense Force East, U.S. Coast Guard
- Melvin Carraway, Acting Administrator, Transportation Security Administration

A full Symposium schedule is attached.

All students are encouraged to attend. Its a great opportunity to do some networking and learn more about the topic from some of the leaders in the field.

If you plan on attending please contact Ryan LaRoche at ryan.larochelle.12@cnu.edu so that we can plan accordingly.
